

COACH SEMINAR on MATCH ANALYSIS

A major element in the KNVB (Royal Dutch Football Union) coaching courses is analyzing the game of soccer. So important is match analysis to the Dutch that it is one of their conditions for passing coaching licenses. In order to properly train their teams, coaches must first be able to clearly understand what happens in a game and why.

Join Ton de Hoop, director of Winning Mood Soccer Academy, professor at the CIOS (one of the only five post-secondary sports colleges in the Netherlands) and instructor for the KNVB for License I (A level) for an incredible coaching seminar focusing on match analysis.

Match analysis is one of the key elements in Winning Mood's coaching clinics organized in the US in the past ten years.

2010 will be Winning Mood's 16th year of offering this special match analysis seminar. Without exception, when evaluating the seminar, every coach that has attended has given this seminar an enthusiastic "two thumbs up"! Many participants have rated the seminar as one of the most insightful, thorough, and enjoyable soccer experiences they've ever had.

Within 6 days coaches will analyze four matches including several Dutch top division matches as well as a top youth match. This is possible to do in Holland because of its small size. In most other countries it would take you two weeks to see the same amount of top level soccer. Prior to each match, a preparatory theory lecture is provided including guidelines on how to and what to look for in a match. After the match, coaches get the chance to contrast games, and improve their "eye" for the game.

In addition to seeing matches, coaches will have the opportunity, at least once, to watch a team in their last training session prior to the game.

Date and Price coach seminar 2010: March 11-17, April 1 – 7, 2010.

The price of the coaching seminar start at € 895 (meals, lodging, tickets to professional matches and all ground transportation included).

Flight not included.
